Construction Contractors Market Report – Focus on Sector Capability and Strategy - UK 2011-2015 Analysis

Non-domestic Construction New Output (UK) 2007 to 2012 - by Value (£bn at Current Prices)

AMA Research has recently published the 1st Edition of a new report on the UK Construction Contractors Market. The report should be of particular interest to clients and other supply chain members including consulting engineers, architects & designers, contractors, suppliers, manufacturers and construction professionals and provides a comprehensive review of the contracting sector.

This 1st edition of the report specifically reviews the UK Contractors Market, focusing on the structure and size of the industry and an analysis of key markets strengths of the top 30 Tier 1 and top 20 Tier 2 contractors operating the UK.

We also review the performance of leading contractors over the past five years, through 10 non-domestic market sectors together with forecasts for construction activity over the next few years.

Topics covered include:

- A detailed review of leading contractors and their consortia in a number of end use market sectors including healthcare and education.
- Key market trends and the impact of government spending cuts on sector projects and capital programmes.
- Impact of the downturn on contractor focus and sector strategy.
- Analysis of change and diversification within the contracting industry as firms address the impact of the downturn on workloads and order books.

The report also reviews the procurement of construction projects under various routes including design build and frameworks including contractor involvement in national, regional and private company frameworks.

In terms of supply chain, we also review the relationship between main contractors and clients, sub-contractors and manufacturers and the impact of contractor influence on the specification process in various market sectors.

Analysis of market developments has been based upon both quantitative and qualitative assessments of both primary and secondary source data. Interpretation of relevant data has been undertaken to explore and support trends within the engineering consultancy market and to provide a basis for forecasts of future prospects.
